Churchill Predicts V-E Day This Summer

PRIME MINISTER PROMISES HELP AGAINST JAPAN

Pledges Britain's Utmost Strength In Fight To Defeat Nips

OPTIMISM WAVE SPREADS

Reports State One Source Says Peace May Come In Six Weeks

LONDON, March 15—Prime Minister Churchill said today that Germany well may be defeated before the end of Summer or even sooner and pledged Britain's utmost strength "to the last inch and the last minute" in the war against Japan.

At the same time, he inferentially warned the United States and Russia that Britain has no need of advice on how to conduct her affairs with the British empire and commonwealth of nations. Britain is entitled to claim assistance from her Allies toward recovery after the war, he told the annual conference of the conservative party, but she must not base her economic life on their indulgence or favor.

"The progress of the war leads us all to hope that the giant foe against whom for more than a year we stood alone, unflinchingly and undismayed, will be forced into unconditional surrender or beaten to the ground in chaos and ruin," he said in referring to approaching victory over Germany.

"Should the war in Europe end before Summer ends, or even sooner, as it may well do, we shall have reached a considerable distance in our journey."

Tommies Must Go Home
He said large numbers of British soldiers now abroad would have to be returned to Britain after Germany's defeat despite commitments in the garrisoning of the Reich and in the war against Japan.

Churchill's prediction that the war in Europe may end within six months coincided with a wave of optimism throughout Britain and on the Western Front.

One front dispatch said reliable non-military sources believed peace possible within six weeks. A former Berlin correspondent now in Stockholm wrote that Adolf Hitler early this month had made a peace feeler through Sweden to the United States and Britain, but had been rejected.

Churchill promised an intense British war effort against Japan. "No mood of war weariness must prevent us from doing our duty to the last inch and to the last minute," he said.

'Must Repay Cruelties'
"The scale of the war against Japan is not limited by manpower. That will be readily forthcoming. It is limited by shipping (Continued on Page Two)

PRIME MINISTER PROMISES HELP AGAINST JAPAN

and other means of transport over vast ocean spaces and through steaming jungles."

He said Britain must repay "in-fernal cruelties perpetrated against British subjects" by the Japanese.

There may be less blood and fewer tears in the months to come, he said, but physical sweat and the united resolve of every man and every woman to give all that is in him will be required "long after the last bomb or cannon has ceased to thunder."

"We have to finish the war against Japan and play our part, not only as loyal allies of the United States and other nations in that conflict, but also to regain, as we are regaining, the territories which the Japanese wrested from us," he said.

It will be Britain's ceaseless endeavor to "hurl our utmost strength into Japan's way," he said.

Needs No Advice

Churchill inferentially told the United States and Russia that Britain has no need of advice on how to run the British empire and commonwealth of nations.

Referring to the entire empire with the exception of southern Ireland, he said that the mother country "to die or conquer with us in righteous cause," he said.

"Certainly, with this unparalleled record, we have no need to seek advice even of our most honored Allies as to how we should conduct ourselves with regard to our own affairs."

"Imperium et libertas—empire and liberty—is still our guide. Without freedom, there is no foundation for our empire. Without the empire, there is no safeguard for our freedom."

"We mean freedom for all states and nations within the circle of the crown. . . we have no ruse here for totalitarian economies and governments in their various forms."

Churchill said no restrictions on British liberties not indispensable for the prosecution of the war and the transition period from war to peace would be tolerated by his government.

Wants No Charity

He said Britain had no wish to live on the charity or generosity of any nation.

Apparently referring to future economic relations with the United States, he added:

"We have given our all in the common cause and may claim assistance to recover our normal economy from those we have helped to victory, but we must never agree to found our economic life on the indulgence or favor, even of the Allies we most dearly cherish."

Churchill concluded with an assertion that victory "lies before us, certain and perhaps near."

'BIGGEST' BOMB WRECKS GERMAN RAILWAY BRIDGE

LONDON, March 15—Eleven-ton British bombs, biggest in the world, collapsed six and perhaps eight spans of the German Ruhr's vital Bielefeld railway viaduct yesterday, the air ministry announced today.

The attack knocked out one of the last remaining double track railways linking the Ruhr with the rest of Germany.

Air correspondents said the new bomb could be expected to have devastating effect over a radius of "literally hundreds of yards." It should do 100 times more damage than a one-ton bomb because the extent of damage multiplies more rapidly than the increase in tonnage, they said.

The bomb, nearly twice as heavy as the largest bomb heretofore used, is 25 feet five inches long and has a diameter of three feet 10 inches. It was designed primarily for attacks on underground structures.

Some idea of its devastating possibilities can be seen in the fact that its six-ton predecessors sank Germany's super-battleship Tirpitz, penetrated the 15-foot thick concrete roofs of U-boats shelters and tore craters 100 feet wide across the Saumur railway tunnel in France.

Britain's Lancaster bombers had to be modified to carry the mammoth missiles. A crew of six requires a half hour to load a single bomb aboard a Lancaster with a special type bomb trolley and hoisting tackle.

The United States gave "valuable assistance" in the manufacture of the bombs, the air ministry said, and supplies of complete bomb bodies are being received from that country.

The bomb was designed by Barnes N. Wallis, 57, chief designer for the Vickers-Armstrong Aircraft section.

JACK KEARNS INDICTED ON FRAUD CHARGES

CHICAGO, March 15—Jack Kearns, who made and spent a fortune while managing such fighters as Jack Dempsey and Mickey Walker during boxing's most lucrative era, was under indictment today charged with promoting a money fight extingisher.

Kearns, now 62 and promoting secondary prizefights in Chicago, was arrested last yesterday, along with Harry (Packy) Lennon, 44, a former boxer.

An indictment returned in New York charged them with violating securities and exchange commission rulings and mail fraud regulations.

Federal authorities said Kearns, Lennon and an "astrologer," Georgia Carruthers who was also known as Princess Zukiska, had defrauded investors of $150,000.

Regional SEC Director Thomas B. Hart said the trio formed a company in November, 1941. Prospects were shown a toy extingisher, told of extensive orders by the British government and U. S. Navy, and according to Hart, offered to invest heavily by Princess Zukiska during astrological consultations.

CHURCH LEADERS ATTEND MEETING AT CHILLICOTHE

The Rev. J. E. Huston, pastor of First United Brethren church, Mrs. C. O. Kerns, Mrs. Iley Greeno and Mrs. James Pierce, members of the Women's Missionary society of the church, were in Chillicothe Thursday attending the Area United Brethren Conference at Tyler church. The Rev. A. R. Clippinger, Dayton, bishop of the central district of the U. B. church, spoke at morning and afternoon sessions.

At 7:45 p. m., men of the United Brethren church in the Circleville and Chillicothe districts will meet for a rally with Perry Wallingford, district vice president, presiding. Bishop Clippinger and the Rev. Joe Hendrix, Brookville, will be the principal speakers and officers will be chosen for the coming year.

The Rev. H. O. Thompson, pastor of the Chillicothe church, presided at the morning session with Bishop Clippinger making the devotional address. C. M. Bowman, conference superintendent, reviewed the church's work. The Rev. E. B. White, Portsmouth, general director of the board of Christian education, presented plans for the Summer program of camps, conventions and leadership training schools.

Following the luncheon at noon in charge of the Tyler Women's Aid group, the Rev. C. A. Walter, leader of the Jackson-Wellston district, presided at the afternoon session.

Mrs. E. S. Kern, president of the Southeast Ohio branch of the Women's Missionary association, told of its work and the Rev. C. F. Lutz, Columbus, president of the camp meeting association, announced plans for the 1945 camp.

of Honef and the southern flank at Hoenningen, and an average of more than five miles deep. German military spokesmen said the Americans had thrown five full divisions, perhaps 75,000 men, into the bridgehead.

More than 25 miles to the southwest, Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's American Third Army broke across the Mosel river in force and thrust eastward toward the Rhine against surprisingly light opposition.

Patton's men were less than three miles from the Rhine at a point about eight miles southeast of Coblenz.

Other Third Army forces rammed across the northern corner of Germany's Saar province on a broad front that carried nine miles or more east of Saarburg.

7th Advances

Simultaneously, American Seventh army forces on the southern fringe of the industrial Saar basin opened up with a limited offensive that pushed the Germans back across the Saar river on an eight-mile front west of the provincial capital of Saarbruecken.

There were no reports of major activity on the northern end of the Allied battlefront, where the American Ninth, Canadian First and British Second Armies were poised in tremendous force for a drive across the Rhine into the broad plains of north Germany.

Explosion Near

Both sides sent patrols stabbing across the Rhine on the stalled northern front and Allied and German accounts intimated strongly that the great offensive was about to explode.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' American First Army already was beginning to roll out through the rugged hills overlooking the east bank of the Rhine. Butressed by a week-long flow of supplies and reinforcements across the captured Remagen bridge and a hastily-constructed pontoon span, the Americans advanced as much as 1 1/2 miles on the eastern and northeastern flanks of their salient today.

One doughboy column slugged its way eastward through the woods beyond Honef to within a mile southwest of Brunsberg, where it was only a half-mile from the German super-highway early today.

1944 National Political Campaign Most Expensive In History, Report Shows

larities in the Arkansas primary and Indiana general elections.

No Violations

2. There was no evidence of "clear-cut" violation of the corrupt practices act by the controversial Political Action Committee of the Congress of Industrial Organizations and its affiliate, the National Citizens Political Action Committee.

3. Only five organizations, including the two party national committees, reported receipts and expenditures over $1,000,000. Others were the PAC, receipts $1,405,120, expenditures $1,327,775; United Republican Finance Committee for Metropolitan New York, receipts $1,629,451, expenditures $1,260,593; and the Republican Finance Committee of Pennsylvania, receipts of $1,252,700 and expenditures of $939,934.

4. No winning U. S. senatorial candidate exceeded the Hatch act ceiling of $10,000—the yearly salary of a senator—on personal contributions in his own behalf in a general election. Sen. John H. Overton, D., La., personally spent $38,613 on his primary campaign and Sen. H. Alexander Smith, R., N. J., spent $44,901 in the general election. These, however, were expenditures and not contributions.

The committee made these recommendations:

1. A "political committee" ations on candidates for federal offices, political committees, and individual contributions should be eliminated because they are "unrealistic." The committee believes the limitations have failed, but continuous publicity "may regulate where prohibition without publicity has failed."

2. Immediate publicity should be given to campaign expenditures and contributions, and such information should be made available at some central depository in Washington.

3. The federal corrupt practices act should be extended to the primary elections to prohibit any candidate from expending substantially more than the annual salary of the office to which he aspires.

4. The present spending limitations on candidates for federal offices, political committees, and individual contributions should be eliminated because they are "unrealistic." The committee believes the limitations have failed, but continuous publicity "may regulate where prohibition without publicity has failed."

5. The senate campaign committee should be made a permanent subcommittee of the senate committee on privileges and elections in order to keep investigations up to date.

Sen. Theodore F. Green, D., R. I. is chairman of the committee. Other members are Sens. Tom Stewart, D., Tenn.; James Tunnell, D., Del.; Joseph H. Ball, R., Minn.; and Homer Ferguson, R., Mich.

'MID - PACIFICAN' SAYS 'GIs' PITY POOR PLAYBOYS'

HONOLULU, March 15—Complaints against the midnight curfew in the United States drew a sarcastic reply today from the "Mid-Pacifican" Army newspaper.

The reply, under a two-column head "GIs shed tear for playboys—wounded by stateside curfew," was written by the Mid-Pacifican's editor, 33-year-old Sgt. Charles Avedon, formerly of New York and Los Angeles.

He listed a full column of quotes from the United States decrying the effect of the curfew on night-life, and then added:

"If there ever was a group deserving a serviceman's sympathy it's these poor suffering characters whose lives have been suddenly uprooted, who have been forced to make one of the most dramatic readjustments of the decade.

"When contrasted with the carefree, unrestricted life of the average overseas GI, it sort of tugs at your heartstrings.

"It's simply peachy stuff to send to Manila, China, Europe's Eastern and Western Fronts. Guys in those spots are bound to experience a feeling of intense pity, knowing what some folks back home are enduring."

OWNERS' DELAY INCREASES FEAR OF COAL STRIKE

WASHINGTON, March 15—Government officials expressed increased anxiety today over the danger of a soft coal strike on April 1.

Their mounting fears resulted from the stalemate in contract discussions between soft coal producers and the United Mine Workers. The present contract expires in 16 days—and the miners' past policy has been "no contract, no work."

For the fourth straight day, the operators asked UMW President John L. Lewis to postpone direct negotiations while they continued efforts to agree on a reply to the wage demands he made two weeks ago. Among them is the controversial 10-cents a ton royalty.

The operators were reported seriously divided on their reply. One faction, headed by Charles O'Neill, president of the Central Pennsylvania producers, was said to be willing to give Lewis a basis for continued negotiations. Another, headed by Edward R. Burke, president of the Southern producers, was said to be opposed to any concessions without governmental direction.

Government agencies anxiously concerned with the delay in direct bargaining included the labor department, Solid Fuels Administration, War Labor Board, Army and Navy.

Operators, UMW and government officials have maintained a tight-lipped silence on the regulations but there were indications that this situation would not continue beyond the next 72 hours.

Government representatives were hoping for an early operators reply which would permit the parties to get down to serious bargaining. Some operators feared the delay would provoke Lewis to charge them with "stalling" or "bad faith." He has already accused Burke of bad faith because the Southern producers' president had asked dismissal of the UMW request for a strike vote on March 28.

ARMY OFFICIALS PROBE CRASH AT WILMINGTON

WILMINGTON, O. March 15—Army officials today investigated the crash of an experimental freight glider near here in which Alfred Reitherman, 35, vice president in charge of research for the Spartan Aircraft Co., of Wichita, Kan., was killed.

Witnesses said the glider crashed on the Heber Harkam farm two miles west of here when Reitherman, a nationally known test pilot, attempted a landing after the craft had been cut loose by a tow plane from the army's Wilmington glider base.

Officials at Wright Field, Dayton, O., said Reitherman had been doing experimental flight work.

ENLISTMENT OF SPARS REOPENED BY COAST GUARD

The United States Coast Guard announced today that enlistment of SPARS has reopened on an increased scale due to an urgent need for women to release men for sea duty. The physical requirements on height and vision have been lowered in order to permit the enlistment of young women formerly rejected on these counts.

For the time being the minimum height is reduced to 53 inches, and defective vision is waived if the defect is correctable to 20/30 in each eye and the defect is not due to any organic disease.

Other qualifications for SPARS are that the young women must be between the ages of 20 and 36, must have completed at least two years of high school and must be American citizens.

SPAR recruits are now being trained at the U. S. Coast Guard Training Station at Manhattan Beach, Brooklyn, New York, the largest Coast Guard training station in the country, where men of the Coast Guard are also trained.

Upon completion of eight weeks "boot" training a SPAR may be assigned to a Coast Guard shore station, or she may apply for further training at one of the specialist schools, where the advanced training lasts from nine weeks to twelve weeks. At present the schools for storekeepers, Yeomen, cooks and bakers, and the general officer training course, are open at Manhattan Beach. The radio-man school located at Atlantic City, New Jersey, lasts for five months.

Further details may be obtained by visiting or writing the U. S. Coast Guard Recruiting Office, Room 102 Old Post Office Bldg., Columbus.

Pfc. David Block Enjoys 'Hospitality' of Nazis At Home In Germany

Pfc. David Block, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Block, 612 Guilford road, is living in a German house and enjoying German food, according to a letter he has written to his parents.

After a furlough in Paris he moved into a small house in Germany. He informed his parents he and his buddies found just about everything waiting for them when they moved in. The place was just like a meat shop, stored up with all sorts of fresh meats, so they have been eating steak and plenty of fried potatoes too. He told his parents that it was a farm house and that they even had bedding to sleep on and that the stationery he was writing on was also some of the spoils. He said that they had gotten just about everything from the Germans, "just their hospitality," he thought. They had gone to one place and there was a fresh baked cake, just out of the oven and waiting there for them.

When he was going through France, Pfc. Block told his parents that the destruction of the country made him feel badly to see the work of so many people over such a long period of years destroyed. He assured them that Germany was getting a worse beating than the Germans gave France and that for some reason the more destruction he saw there, the more he liked it. He said, "Perhaps when the Germans see what's happening to the fatherland, it'll sort of cure them against future wars as the evidence of this war will be apparent for years to come in this country." He thinks that the civilians, from their appearance, are sickening of the war.

He told of a woman coming up the road at daylight, one morning, and when he told her that she would have to go to the rear, she seemed overcome with joy when she found that Americans were there, and started laughing and crying at the same time and told him in German how happy it made her. He said that he just could not figure them out, but all he wanted was an early end to war and for all to live in peace.

NEW TURKEY PORT OPENS

ANKARA—The new port of Iskenderun, built by British firms, and a 300-mile road between Tarsus and the port have been opened. The formal opening followed inauguration of the use of a second road between Mersin and Olu-kishla.

ASHVILLE

While in Logan recently, I met Tom Armstrong, former assistant coach in Circleville, who is now coach at Logan high. Logan had a fair season with high hopes for a good basketball team next season, as most of the letter men will return. Coach Armstrong showed us all around the Logan athletic plant, which seems to be very well equipped. The gym where the regional tournament will be held seats about 1,000 fans. The playing floor, which is on a stage, has a composition floor with a playing space approximately 85 feet by 44 feet. According to tournament manager, Fred Burchfield, the doors will not be opened until 1:15 and 7:00 with the games scheduled to begin at 2:00 and 8:15.

Group pictures of each elementary grade and the basketball squad were taken Wednesday. Pupils interested in obtaining copies of the pictures may order through their home room teacher.

The board of education of the Methodist church will meet at the church Monday at 8:00 p. m.

Pfc. John Wright wrote under date of February 24 from Germany that he could picture the county basketball tournament from the many times he had attended games there. John is well and sends greetings to his Ashville friends.

Pvt. Dale Miller has completed his basic training at Camp Fannin, Texas, and is home on furlough.

The Ashville village board of education met Tuesday evening and re-hired all the elementary teachers. No other business, except the paying of bills, was transacted.

The Juniors held a class party and 8th grades oppose the Sophomores. The Juniors and Sophomores are the favorites for the title among the boys.

Henry Snyder is seriously ill at his home east of Ashville.

in the school auditorium Wednesday with Miss Conard and Miss Engle acting as chaperones. The Juniors are busy in preparation for the Junior-Senior banquet which will be an event of the near future.

Emmet E. Fraunfelter is also reported as being quite ill.

WHITE HOUSE MILKER Solves Your Production Problems!
With labor scarcity a big handicap, White House mechanical milking is helping to solve many farmers' problems. Cuts milking time from 1/3 to 1/2.

CORRECT CALF-LIKE MILKING ACTION
Is of utmost importance in the machine you buy. White House Milkers are fast, and safe, because the individually designed inflators massage gently and naturally, as does the feeding calf. White House Pulsator has no springs or gaskets. These two features plus many other outstanding ones—as well as our very low price, should quickly settle your question of choice in favor of a White House Milker.

ASTRP EXAMS TO BE GIVEN HERE APRIL 12

Pickaway county and Circleville high schools will hold joint Army Specialized Training Reserve Program qualifying tests on April 12, it was announced Wednesday. The tests will be given at Circleville high school under the supervision of school authorities.

A. S. T. R. P. is an army educational program given to qualifying young men. To be eligible to take the test they must have their seventeenth birthday fall between October 1, 1944 and August 31, 1945, inclusive, and they must not be older than seventeen years and nine months the first day of the month following high school graduation.

A. S. T. R. P. trainees are members of the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps and are given from 24 to 48 weeks of specialized college training with their food, lodging, uniforms, and books furnished by the army.

SCOUTERS PLAN DISTRICT RALLY HERE APRIL 14

Plans for a district Boy Scout rally April 14 were discussed by members of the Pickaway district committee Wednesday night in the Container Corporation of America offices.

All troops and Cub packs in the county are to participate in the program, which will probably be held in Memorial Hall. Leonard Lytle and John Moore will be in charge of the rally.

Members also discussed the board of review, court of honor, camporee, and the Scoutmasters' training course which will start April 20.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent urination shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

How Sober Hoskins Got His Name

Everybody kids Sober Hoskins about his name. Of course, they allow that it's appropriate. Sober never drinks anything stronger than a glass of beer. And a harder worker in the fields there never was.

"Shucks," says Sober's dad. "We named Sober 'Sober' just because he looked that way when he was born. Like we called his sister 'Gay,' and his other sister 'Prissy.' And it's had its effect on all of 'em," he adds with spirit. (Prissy is the old maid in the Hoskins family.)

From where I sit, there may be something in what Sober's dad says. Naming children after virtues is a fine old American custom. Look at the names of our pioneers and pilgrims: Faith, Piouss, Charity, Hope, Ernest.

Maybe we should use such names more often. And one I'd like to add is "Tolerance." If we all had Tolerance for a middle name, and lived up to it, we'd have a better, happier world.

YOUNG MARINE WHO WOULD NOT QUIT TWO HERO

Ex-Prizefighter From Ohio Supplied Equipment To Entire Division

IWO JIMA, March 15 — A 21-year-old ex-prizefighter who simply wouldn't take the count was the real hero of the Iwo Jima invasion to the 5th Marine division, his commanding officer revealed today.

Although wounded, the youth, S/Sgt. John R. Haddock, East Liverpool, O., single-handedly supplied an entire Marine division with much-needed signal equipment when frontline units were threatened with a communications blackout the day after the invasion.

Haddock, according to his commander, Maj. Howard M. Conner 5th Marine division signal officer of Paterson, N. Y., made 12 round trips under fire from a beach to frontline units. He carried essential equipment until he finally collapsed from exhaustion. Haddock, who weighs 150 pounds and is of medium stature, first saved the lives of two wounded comrades.

Late on the afternoon of D-day, Haddock, a veteran of Guadalcanal who appeared in amateur and professional boxing bouts in Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Youngstown, O., before joining the Marines four years ago, was acting as telephone wire chief ashore, Conner said.

"A mortar shell—one of many shells falling like rain on the beach—hit very close to his position and wounded him in the hand," Conner declared.

The same shell hit and seriously wounded two men working with Haddock.

"Everyone on the beach was pinned down by murderous machinegun and shell fire. But Haddock, without hesitating a moment, lifted one man to his shoulders and carried him 150 yards to an aid station."

"He returned and picked up the other wounded man, carrying him to the same spot. Then he went back to the job of laying telephone wire."

The next day, Conner continued, it became evident the Marines were not getting supplies from the beach in sufficient quantity because wheeled vehicles were bogged down in volcanic sand or knocked out by heavy enemy fire.

Haddock, realizing this, headed for the beach, where he found an amphibious truck slightly smaller than a jeep, known as a "Weasel."

"The driver was dead at the wheel," Conner said. "Haddock had never seen a Weasel before—much less drive one. But somehow he got it running and headed for the beach 600 yards away."

Units all along the 5th division front were on the verge of a communications blackout because of lack of signal supplies when Haddock showed up with the Weasel, stuffed with much-needed batteries, telephones and wire. The supplies enabled the Marines to continue their advance.

The ex-prizefighter made 12 trips, all under heavy enemy fire, and "single-handedly supplied an entire division," Conner said.

"He continued until he collapsed from exhaustion," he added. "It was one of the outstanding instances of heroism of our signal men in this operation."

"The two men he saved are now recovering at a hospital in the Hawaii area."

STANDARDS FOR CHILDREN

A movement to guard children against
taking gainful employment too early is gaining strength. Bills are before the legislature of several states to raise the minimum working age from 14 to 16. One state with no minimum working age is seeking to establish one at 14.

The state which protects the growth and
mental and physical development of children comes out ahead in the end. But there is one point which needs looking into before such laws are hastily passed. Is the compulsory school age to be raised at the same time?

One state, some years ago, made the mistake of raising its working age to 16
while leaving its school age at 14, with the result that thousands of its young people
were completely idle, hanging around corners and undesirable places for two years before the law let them work.

The head-minded child, who learns
easily from books, usually wants to stay
in school as long as possible, and the parents want it to do so. But the hand-minded child, who learns by doing things, gets
little out of the ordinary academic high school. His needs must be provided for by the best of manual training.

Taxpayers will have to learn that the benefits of spending money on technical schools are great. There is no better investment. The educational plants need to be ready for the child labor laws. Both are good. In fact both are necessary.

SUPPLY PROBLEMS

THE food and supply picture, which has been blurred and chaotic to most civilians, is coming into clear focus again. A new order by War Mobilization James F.
Byrnes has created an inter-agency committee composed of the heads of the military supply groups, of lend-lease and the War Shipping Administration, and of the War Food Administration, all under Leo
T. Crowley as chairman.

The committee's job is to see that service and foreign commitments are met as necessary, but that the present duplication
of orders and filing of indefinite requests
be stopped. Domestic production is first to be brought into line with our own war and civilian needs. This will prevent stalling
of the vast American war machine on either the foxhole or the factory front.
After this has been done, the remainder
may go abroad, on a basis of greatest need.

It is a move which has long been needed,
for without such coordination not even the United States can produce enough to satisfy the urgent demands upon her resources.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 15—The Byrnes
super-committee on food exports was appointed to draw a ship-plaster over the
mess which various government agencies
have made of the foreign food supply programs.

The debt Mr. Byrnes is taking hold of the loose-running, open-hearted, benevolent-handed food dispensing bureaus in an effort to effect some equity between civilian needs here and further shipments to Europe.

Behind the move lay trustworthy reports of high accumulations of food supplies in Britain and some other places
abroad (no one seems to know where)
while a somewhat desperate shortage exists in Greece and our occupied part of Italy (where published news reports say
food is scarcer than in the Nazi-held part.)

This puzzling condition has been accentuated by simultaneous prospects that our own domestic food supplies are going to become tighter and tighter for the house-
wife until Fall at least.

Furthermore we are entering planting
season with the most difficult production
outlook since the war started, with help
shorter and implements scarcer than in the previous war years.

The move was absolutely necessary—
and overdue.

A foremost business man, just back
from Europe, is my authority for reporting
an overaccumulation of food in Britain.
For one example, he learned in London
from business sources of four Argentine ships, loaded with beef, refused entry and
required to cruise around in the waters
offshore because storehouses were filled
and docking facilities limited by other
supply ships unloading.

In Italy and Greece he was informed that the Russians party (the local people
there no longer use the word Communist,
but call Stalin's devotees "the Russian partisans") had offered importations of food
for political considerations. Where the Russians could get food for export he did not learn. He found the Italians nevertheless generally favoring the American occupation, despite the shortages of fuel and
clothing as well as food.

Beyond this report, the Nazis have flooded Holland with salt water. Southern Italian fields have not been cleared of mines and shrapnel and cannot be fully planted. Clearly Europe cannot grow
this year. The problem of feeding Germany is coming up.

Now while no European seems to be getting food (Greece being in the same boat as Italy and France nearby), the Army, lend-lease, the Lehman outfit and
the Commodity Credit Corporation have been buying and sending billions of dollars
of foodstuffs abroad according to their announced figures.

The question, "where is it?" is not the only one raised by these facts (the depend-
ability of their source raises them above
the category of unauthoritative reports),
but the condition also seems to inquire if Britain and Russia have stored or intend
to use our lend-lease food for the purpose
of building influence and prestige on the conquered continent. If so, our lend-lease

Nursing During Wartime

NOBODY can say that the nursing profession has not justified its existence in this war. And remember that it is quite a new profession.

The first nursing school in the United States was established at the New England Hospital for Women in 1872. The nursing school at Bellevue Hospital, New York, was founded in 1873. That is only a little over seventy years
ago, and it must be remembered
that anything like universal nursing
training did not get a good start until the beginning of this century.

A Comforting Thought

So the world went through a
good many years and a good many
wars without any trained nurses
at all. In this time of nurse shortages, both in the military and civil life, that is a comforting thought.
Most women with very little training can do a great many of the services that the trained nurse is called on to do, especially where
the patient is not too sick—certainly the convalescent patient.

In our own wars, there was no
corps of trained nurses of any size
until World War I. It was not until after the Spanish-American War that the Army Nurse Corps
was established (1901). The Navy Nurse Corps was not established
until 1908.

George Washington, with his practical common sense, ordered
that a certain number of women
should be assigned to the sick of each regiment. That was about all the nursing that occurred in the Revolutionary War.

War of 1812

There seems to be no record at
all of any nursing done by women
in the War of 1812 or the Mexican War.

Just before the Civil War, Florence
Nightingale opened her campaign, but it had not made much headway in the United States by 1861. Most of the nursing was done by untrained volunteer women. Louisa May Alcott was an example.

When World War I began, the armed forces had their own nursing corps and the Red Cross was organized so that it could supply
several thousand of its enrolled nurses. Two hundred and seventy-
two nurses died in service in World War I from contagious diseases,
and three were wounded. The comparative fury of the two wars is shown in that no nurse was killed
by enemy action in World War I,
while several hundred have been killed in this war.

In World War II nurses were commissioned as officers for the first time. On July 12, 1944, there were 40,000 nurses in the corps,
compared to 22,000 enrolled at the end of World War I.

There will undoubtedly be need
for all nurses available and, in fact, we can expect a nurse short-
age in civilian life for many years
yet. So it might be well to have female members of any household
instructed in the rudiments of nursing.

"The Authority on Authorities"

ALL THINGS RELATIVE

IN PLAYING a hand, it is folly
to consider the card combination
in some suit as a single entity,
to be played so as to take the
largest possible number of tricks
with it. The thing that counts is the total number of tricks taken
during the entire play, not just in the play of one suit. Sometimes the sacrificing of a trick at one
place can enable you to take several more with other parts of your holding.

North and South were using the Blackwood convention—but using it right. The 5-No Trump call was not a conventional king-requester,
as if that had been North's purpose, he would have bid the 4-No
Trump first. Therefore, the 5-No
Trump was a natural bid, asking South to go higher if he had any
secondary strength justifying it.
He had. So he did.

Too bad that okeh bidding was all for naught. When West led the club 4, South was hasty. He could have told you any old time that,

with a lead coming up to the K-J-3, through the A-7, you would get three tricks out of the combination if you played low from the dummy. So that's what he did. By so doing, he made his contract impossible. He got a trick, all right,
with his J, but then was blocked
when he tried to take a total of 12 tricks.

Next he scored two spade tops,
gave up a third to East, won the returned club with the A and ran
two heart tops and three more spades. At the end, however, he had to give up the diamond 10 to the Q, so was down.

His assignment was to win the first trick with the club A, score
the heart A and K, take two spades, lead a third, win the return while he had the club K for an entry to his hand and use the hearts to discard the diamond 10.
No power on earth could have stopped his contract if he had done
that.

HELEN COMES HOME

by Watkins E. Wright

SYNOPSIS

HELEN MILLER is an attractive
young woman of 28, who has been
lured by a playboy,
PAUL WENTWORTH, a southern plantation owner, who married
ZOE NORRIS. Helen lives in an apartment with war plant trainee AGGIE JONES, a pleasant, 20-year-old self-confessed "old maid," who urges Helen to try to mend her broken
heart by dating.
PHILIP BROWNELL, foreman and
manager of the war plant owned and operated by Helen's AUNT MINERVA, a shrewd business
woman who drives a hard bargain and hopes to match Brownell and her niece during Philip's stay in New York on vacation.

YESTERDAY: Paul Wentworth, in Washington, trying to talk officials
into letting him do something more
exciting than running a plantation,
discovers that his wife, Zoe Norris,
with whom he eloped, is not nearly as understanding as Helen was. In desperation he decides to join the Civil Air Patrol in Lakeville.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

RUNNING a plantation—doing
duty in the air with his plane—
keeping busy at two things. It sounded interesting. Besides, a pipe line was being constructed not far from Lakeville. Then, too, Lakeville was now a defense area, since Miss Minerva Miller had turned her axe handle factory into a war plant. Come to think of it, he could be darned useful down there among
his own people.

"Are you going to stand there
like a bump on a log all day?" Zoe said. "I thought you told me to hurry and dress."

"I did," said Paul. "Ready?"

Zoe looked about the room as though she were saying good-by to
it with her eyes. "Yes," she said.
"I'm ready." She walked to the door, hesitated there. "I'll go home
with you now, Paul, but I'm not promising to stay."

"No?"
"No. That charming Mrs. Roark
we met understands how I feel about leaving Washington to live
on a lonely old farm, and she's invited me to come back and visit
her."

"That woman," said Paul, "is a pain in the neck. She's one of those damn fool people who get all fut-
tery and excited when Eleanor Roosevelt goes by. She 'simply adores' people who are in the limelight. She fairly purrs in the heat of reflected glory. I people got tanned from the stray beams of limelight, she'd look like a piece
of blighted toast."

"I liked her," Zoe said. "She knows how to entertain. She's one of Washington's busiest and smartest
hostesses—and she's always surrounded by a lot—"

"—of climbers," said Paul. "People who want to share her reflected glory."

"I wasn't going to say any such thing," said Zoe. "I was going to say she's always surrounded by a
lot of exciting women and—men."

"Are you looking for exciting
men?"

"Perhaps."
Paul eyed her. "That's what I've
been thinking," he said, "ever since
I saw you shining up to that diamond in the rough, Mike Waterman."

"Mr. Waterman," said Zoe with dignity, "is a very important man
in Washington, and he's doing big things."

"I couldn't vouch for that," said
Paul, "but I've a sneaking idea he's making big profits—at the expense
of Uncle Sam."

"I don't care," said Zoe. "He's amusing—and—"

"And he spends money right and left. Yes, I know."

Zoe said: "He's worked hard all
his life, and never had much fun.
He told me I did him good—that I

reminded him of the girl he's been carrying around in his mind and heart for years."

"Very romantic and touching,"
Paul said. "Was he sober?"

"Of course he was."

"I thought perhaps he was tight
—and had forgotten that you had
a husband."

"You're jealous, that's what!"
"Am I?"

"Oh, come on," Zoe said impatiently. "If we've got to go back to the sticks, let's get started."

They went out to the elevator.

And as they were taken down to the main floor, Paul began suddenly to feel more cheerful. The CAPS!
He'd look into the matter just as soon as he got things going down
home. Flying his own plane once more, and doing it for a good cause. Returning home was swell!
He was glad to be leaving Washington. He didn't like the place.
Bedlam, that's what it was—Bedlam beside the Potomac! Big shots
—like Mike Waterman—trying to appear bigger than they really
were. Talking patriotism, and piling up fortunes. The whole set-up
made him good and sick.

He'd be tickled pink to get back to the plantation, back to his sowing and his reaping. He'd work like the devil, making two stalks of corn grow where only one had grown before. He'd put more acreage in garden vegetables—the
things civilians and soldiers were badly in need of. He'd make the Wentworth plantation blossom
and increase like the Biblical land
of milk and honey.

Then, as he helped Zoe into a
taxicab, he thought again of Helen.
It would be darned nice if she would also come back to Lakeville. Maybe she'd be interested in joining him
in this civilian air patrol business.
Helen loved flying—

There were times during the two weeks that followed when Helen felt herself weakening, when she wondered if she hadn't been far too impulsive in telling Philip she was going to resign, times when
she very nearly walked into the buyer's office to tell him she had changed her mind, that she wasn't going home and wanted to keep
her job.

She asked herself over and over
again if she weren't inviting further unhappiness in returning to Lakeville. After all, she had been away for over two years; she had
a pleasant and fairly well paying position—so why—why—why?
Then she would remember Philip's arms about her, see the understanding in his eyes, and again a homesick longing would sweep over
her.

"I almost wish he'd stayed away," she said to Aggie on the day she was doing the last of her packing.

"Who?" said Aggie, knowing full
well whom she meant.

"Philip, of course."

"Why?"

"I was getting along all right
until he arrived," Helen replied. "I'd managed to forget almost completely all that had happened,
and—"

"You had not," Aggie contradicted.
"You remembered all right, and
you were having a grand time nursing your wounded pride and feeling
sorry for yourself."

"That's a nice thing to say!"
"You were like a young widow," Aggie went on, "who rather fancies herself in mourning. You wore your heart on your sleeve and thought it
fetchingly becoming, you—"

"I did no such thing," Helen flared.

Aggie paid no attention. "It's the
best thing that could have happened—Philip Brownell coming to

New York and sweeping you right
off your feet."

"He didn't sweep me off my feet," Helen said.

"Maybe not. But you're going back home, that's for sure. It's all
the same in the final analysis."

"I'm going home because—because I'm homesick, and can be of service to Aunt Minerva in the plant."

"Okay, you're going home because you're patriotic! Let it go at
that."

Helen closed a small bag and straightened up.

"I hate awfully to leave you, Aggie," she said. "It's been fun being with you here. I'll miss you terribly."

"I'll miss you too, Helen," Aggie
said. "But I'll tell you right now
that if a man like Philip Brownell
wanted ME to come home, you nor
anyone else could keep me here."

"You mean you'd walk out on me
without a tremor?"

"Oh, there might be a couple of
tremors—maybe three," said Ag-
gie. "But I'd walk out on you if a good defense job came along instead of a man."

"I was afraid of that," Helen
said. "It's one of the reasons I decided to go home."

"And now that you are going,
don't forget I'm in the market for a change of positions."

"I won't. I'll see what I can do about you at the plant. Philip wrote, you know, that there would be several openings when the new
addition was completed."

"Thanks. All you or Philip need to do is crook a little finger—and I'll be on my way."

They went down to the Pennsylvania station together.

As they stood waiting for the
train gates to open, Helen said:

"Suppose I should end up marrying the man—being a stepmother
isn't any easy job."

"Of course not," Aggie agreed.
"But any woman with even a spark
of the old maternal instinct could win over that cute kid of Philip's.
You do have some maternal instincts, don't you?"

"I think," said Helen, "that I do."

"All right then. Go home—get to work in the plant—go out with Philip every chance you get—and make friends with Dick."

"Yes'm. More advice to the lovelorn."

"Come to think about it," Aggie
said, "maybe I was cut out to be one of those 'Dear Beatrice Fairfax' creatures."

The gateman called Helen's train.
She put her arms around Aggie and held her close.

"Pray for me, honey," she said.
"I'll do more than that for you,"
said Aggie. "I'll keep my fingers
crossed."

"It won't be so bad," Helen said,
"if Paul Wentworth stays in Washington."

"Stop worrying about him," Aggie replied. "Surely Lakeville's big enough for the two of you. From all Miss Minerva writes, and from all Philip Brownell told us, it's a lot bigger now than it was when
you left."

"But," said Helen, "I wonder if it will ever be big enough to keep us from running into each other."

"Well, if you do, be nonchalant—
be the woman of the world."

"How does one go about being like that?"

"Look at him," Aggie continued,
"smile your most brilliant smile,
and say, 'Well, if it isn't the man
who left me waiting at the church!
Fancy meeting you here!'"

Helen laughed, although she felt
the sting of tears in her eyes. "I'll try," she said, and ran down the stairs to her train.

Mrs. Eva Hedges Honored On Birthday Anniversary

Soldier Son Plans Party For His Mother

A group of friends and former neighbors were entertained at a one o'clock luncheon Wednesday at the Pickaway Arms, the affair honoring Mrs. Eva Hedges, of Saltcreek Valley, who was observing her eightieth birthday anniversary. The party was the gift of Mrs. Hedges' son, Gilbert, who is serving with the U. S. Army in Italy, and was arranged by her daughter, Mrs. Clydus Fausnaugh, 531 Elm avenue, with whom Mrs. Hedges has been spending her winters for the last several years. Another daughter, Mrs. J. A. Foust of Columbus, was unable to attend the party because of illness in her home.

The color scheme of green and yellow was carried out in the party appointments. Centering the table was an attractive birthday cake, decorated in delicate green and yellow and topped with green candles in like holders. Nut cut favors in green were at each cover. Mrs. Hedges cut and served her birthday cake with the dessert course.

After the delightful luncheon, the guests gathered at the home of Mrs. Fausnaugh where the afternoon was passed in informal visiting and reminiscing. Mrs. Cliff Hedges read a poem, "You Gotta Have a Glory," and Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer read a group of Paul Lawrence Dunbar's poems, "Encouragement" and "In the Morning," at the request of the honor guest.

The guest list included: Mrs. Eva Hedges, Mrs. Fausnaugh, Mrs. Cliff Hedges, Mrs. Reichelderfer in addition to Mrs. W. E. Luckhart, Frances Monahan, Mrs. O. S. Mowery, Mrs. E. C. Aldenderfer, Saltcreek Valley; Mrs. Charles L. Armstrong, Mrs. H. E. Defenbaugh, Laurelville; Mrs. Charles Wilson, Mrs. Charles Schwinn, Mrs. Clyde Hedges, Mrs. Leeman Pritchard and Mrs. Noah Walliser, Turlington.

Open House
One hundred and fifty interested visitors were present Wednesday for the 'open house' at the new Girl Scout headquarters, 122 1/2 North Court street. Guests were received in two periods, 3 to 5 and 7 to 9, and were shown the various attractive rooms by board members and members of the troop committees who served as hostesses during the afternoon and evening.

Members of the various troops contributed much time and labor in making the rooms a splendid setting for the headquarters of the troops of Circleville and Pickaway county. Troop committees assisted and for the most part, the furnishings were donated or loaned by friends in the community who are interested in girl scouting.

The beautiful tea table was arranged by Mrs. M. E. Noggle, Mrs. Harold Pontius, Mrs. Hal Dean and Mrs. Bernard Young, commissioner of the Pickaway county Girl Scout association, poured during the afternoon period. Mrs. Vaden Couch, Mrs. C. Ray Barnhart and Mrs. Robert Musser served during the evening, assisted by Mrs. H. S. Wilson and Mrs. William Fisher, Ashville board members.

Refreshments were provided by members of the board and of the troop committees. All members of the board were present during the affair.

Marriage Revealed
Announcement has just been made of the marriage of Miss Leah Binns, New Holland, to Harry L. Sheppard, of Mt. Sterling. The single ring ceremony was read January 18 at 4:30 p. m. at the parsonage of the First Methodist church of Circleville with the Rev. Clarence Swearingen officiating.

Mr. Sheppard, who served two and one-half years in the U. S. Army, spent 19 months in the European theatre of war operations. He received his honorable discharge from the Army on December 11, 1944.

Mr. and Mrs. Sheppard will live on a farm near Mt. Sterling.

The officers of Purity chapter No. 65, OES, New Holland, and members of their families entertained at a dinner and miscellaneous shower recently honoring Mrs. Sheppard, who has been an interested and faithful officer of the chapter for several years.

Food, Faith and Fellowship
"Members of the congregation of the Presbyterian church gathered Wednesday in the church social room for a cooperative supper that preceded the midweek Lenten service. Group H was in charge of the affair.

The Rev. Carl L. Kennedy used the words "I Thirst" as spoken on the cross by Jesus as his theme for the Lenten talk. Recordings of "Jesus Before Pilate" held the close attention of the group at the opening of the service. Group singing of hymns, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Robert Goodchild, and a poem, "I Thirst," read by the pastor completed the service.

REGIONAL PLAY STARTS TONIGHT

Norton Meets Canton Team; Other Tourneys Set For Friday, Saturday

COLUMBUS, March 15—The regional rounds of the Ohio high school basketball tournament start tonight when Class B squads begin play at Kent and Bowling Green.

At Kent, favored Norton meets Canton St. Johns, while Columbus, which upset earlier the defending Class B champion, Akron Ellet, plays Yorkville.

At Bowling Green, Farmer, which won 25 straight games this season, will play Sandusky St. Marys which lost only two of 23 games. In the final game Butler meets Wilshire, both of which lost only two games this season.

The winners at both tournaments will play final games Saturday to qualify entries to the championship finals at Springfield March 24.

Regional tournament games at Logan and Springfield will be played Saturday afternoon and night.

Meanwhile Class A games will start at Bowling Green, Kent and Zanesville tomorrow night, while the Dayton rounds will be held Saturday.

TRACK MEETING DELAYED COLUMBUS, March 15—The central district meeting of the Ohio Track Coaches association here today was postponed until April 7 because of an Easter holiday conflict earlier.

MORTON COOPER TAKES MILITARY EXAMINATION

ST. LOUIS, March 15—Pitcher Mort Cooper of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals was undergoing his second physical examination today to determine his fitness for military service. He was classified 4-F a month ago. His brother, Walker, Cardinal catcher, will be inducted next month.

REDS TO OPEN CAMP MONDAY AT BLOOMINGTON

CINCINNATI, March 15—Plans were completed today by the Cincinnati Reds for spring baseball training at Bloomington, Ind., beginning Monday.

The Reds' pitching staff was boosted to 13 with the signing of two veteran moundmen—Horace Linsabee of Syracuse and Guy Bush, a free agent.

The Cincinnati club this winter lost four hurlers to the armed services, including Harry Gumbert, Tommy De La Cruz, Jim Konstanty and Clyde Shoun.

The two 42-year-old pitchers are expected to report for training Monday. Linsabee won 15 games and lost 15 last year, while Bush won five and lost three at Chattanooga.

AAU SPONSORS BOLLAS

COLUMBUS, March 15—James A. Rhoades, Central Ohio AAU president, announced today that the union would sponsor George Bollas, 335-pound Ohio State wrestler from Warren, O., in the national AAU at Dallas, Texas, March 23-24.

the 1945 pennant, but cautioned: "Of course, the Yankees always are dangerous."

Saying that "I think we will make it tough for everybody this year," Mack watched with satisfaction as his team drilled. Particularly impressive was Luther Knerr, 230-pound rookie right-hander from Toronto, who showed a fine fast ball on the mound as the team prepared for its first exhibition game with the Glenn Martin Bombers on Sunday. Bill Daubert, young southpaw, left the camp because of a sore arm.

PLEASANTVILLE, N. J., March 15—Manager Joe Cronin with a prayer and considerable hope for a number of wins, today said he hoped to open the Boston Red Sox' spring training sessions with at least six pitchers and one catcher on hand.

ASHVILLE FIVE WILL GO AFTER MORE HONORS

Pickaway, District Champs Expect Stiff Opposition At Logan Regional

Ashville, high school eagles Thursday were winding up preparations for another basketball tournament in which they hope to win more honors.

The regional crown will be the goal Saturday when Ashville travels to Logan. In their first game the Broncos meet the team with the best record in the state, Wheelersburg which has won 30 games and lost none, but the Ashville boys refuse to be impressed before the game starts. They have met several teams with good records but have lost to only one of them during the 1944-45 season.

Fans and the team are expecting one of the toughest games of the season when Ashville and Wheelersburg tangle at 2 p. m. Saturday. Wheelersburg showed plenty of scoring power winning the district tournament at Waverly. The Scioto county champions trounced Fairfield 51-36 in the semi-finals and thumped Locust Grove, 48-30 in the final game. High scorers for the team were Staker, a forward, and Conley and Bennett, guards. Staker and Bennett were named on the all-tournament team at Waverly and Center Cramer was chosen for the second team.

If Ashville safely hurdles the Wheelersburg threat, the winner of the other afternoon game will be the opposition in the finals at 9:30 Saturday night.

Clashing in the other afternoon game, set for 3:15 p. m., are Glenford, Perry county team which won the district tournament at Logan, and Sugar Creek-Shanesville, which won the eastern district tournament at Dennison.

Losers of the afternoon games play in a consolation game at 8:15 p. m. Saturday. Officials of the tournament have announced that the doors of the gym will open at 1:15 for the afternoon session and 7 for the night session.

ANDY BECOMES SPEAKER

For $50 Kingfish Stevens would do anything—that is, he'll get Andy Brown to do anything. When a woman mistakes his office for a lecture bureau and offers fifty bucks for a speaker at a women's club dinner, Kingfish convinces Andy that he is a platform orator and sends him along to the engagement to talk himself into more trouble Friday.

PRISONER STORY AIRED

Returning home in an exchange of prisoners, an ex-prisoner of war is alarmed by the public's lack of understanding of the enemy, in the drama presented on the Army Service Forces "Assignment Home," on Saturday.

FBI FIGHT TERROR

One of the most bizarre cases ever investigated by "The FBI in Peace and War" will be dramatized on Saturday, when the German match wits with the "Terror in the Night." In the story, a radio recording fixes the exact moment of a terrible crime and sends agents of the FBI on a cross-country chase to New York's Chinatown and to California's Santa Anita racetrack. The real-life drama is based on a chapter from Frederick L. Collins' popular book, "The FBI in Peace and War."

Civilians To Feel Squeeze of War More During Next Few Months

'BUSINESS WEEK' SEES SCARCITY OF MANY ITEMS

Magazine Predicts Shoes, Clothing, Food Will Be Hard To Get

Circleville and Pickaway county residents will feel the "squeeze" of a total war more during the next few months than ever before, according to present indications.

The next few months will be the most uncomfortable of the war on the home front, "Business Week," a magazine of current business news states, and quotes one official as saying: "The time is coming when we will no longer be able to support the Army in the style to which it has become accustomed."

"The man on the street," the publication states, "will feel the squeeze directly when he has trouble getting what he wants in the way of food, clothing, shoes, and many small items of necessity or convenience. He will also feel it, a little less directly, when shortages of such things as transportation equipment and farm machinery eventually show up in reduced supplies and services at the consumer level."

Too Late To Change
"Officials who question the military's demands—both as to their size and as to the manner of asking—are gravely worried about the squeeze. They argue that the U. S. is not set up to fight the war on a shoestring and that it is now too late for a drastic change in civilian supply policies."

"The U. S. concept of total war, these officials say, has been that military needs would be better met by taking good care of civilians, who would then increase total production, than by diverting to war everything not essential to maintaining a bare-bones economy at home."

"If certain basic civilian needs are not automatically met out of the country's productive bounty, they must be secured through sweeping government controls of the stringent character applied in Russia and Great Britain. In most fields such controls are still lacking and officials think the time for practical imposition of them has long since passed. For example, there are no longer enough low-priced utilitarian fabrics available to make possible a system of rationing essential civilian clothing."

"Thus Washington is looking at the new war procurement with an eye not only to immediate hardships but also to the serious dislocations they may cause in large sections of the economy."

Steel Supply Short
Reporting the specific spots where the squeeze is expected to be tightest over the next few months, BUSINESS WEEK says: "The steel allocation for a list of some 60 essential civilian items—including such things as dry cell batteries, electric irons, bicycles, ice refrigerators, cutlery, hardware—has been cut to three-fourths of the first-quarter level. Cuts on individual items are expected to range from 15 percent to 50 per cent with the least essential items taking the biggest loss.

"The textile shortage is now so acute that it threatens seriously to affect furniture production. Furniture manufacturers were told by the Office of Civilian Requirements this week that the Army will soon be taking 75 percent of upholstery mill output."

"U. S. supplies of several basic fabrics will soon be below the proportionate amounts available under the British ration system."

"The civilian shoe outlook is described by one official as "worse than we ever thought it would be—even if everything breaks just right. OCR has given up hope of maintaining supplies of even children's and work shoes at a level to meet minimum requirements."

"Lumber production has been dropping steadily. Serious shortages will develop in the next two months. Paper is about the same situation. The shortage will be felt first in wrapping paper and grocery bags, will spread later to more critical types."

"The container shortage (which reflects an acute shortage of resin) may soon interfere seriously with the distribution of other civilian goods."

"Present food shortages won't get better soon and may get worse."
